Cone Employees Key Men In 1953 Campaign For Community Chest

Five Cone employees were named last week by General Chairman Ben Cone as key men in the 1954 Community Chest campaign to get underway in Greensboro October 7.

Division chairmen include H. M. Angel, who will head social agencies, and Jim Perrin, general business, with Fred Ziprik as a major in the general business division. Gordon Williams will assist Walter Williams in solicitor training, and George W. Hamer will spearhead the plant-wide campaign at Cone Mills.

An organization meeting of division chairmen was held last Friday night at Chairman Cone's home to lay final plans for the drive to raise $302,902.85. This represents an increase of $20,000, or 7½ percent over last year's goal.

Divisions are divided into two groups for the forthcoming campaign—19 unit account divisions and eight soliciting divisions. The unit account divisions, which include all firms employing over 10 persons, will organize campaigns within each firm. The soliciting divisions will set up teams to collect from individuals who are Greensboro residents but who are not contacted through the unit account divisions.

Unit account division chairman are: John Dear of the Adamson-Cadillac-Oldsmobile Company, auto-gas-oil; Robert M. Dinkel, Carolina Quality Block Company, building supplies; W. H. Weaver, W. H. Weaver Construction Company, construction; A. O. Coleman, Guilford National Bank, finance.

Textorian Featured In Textile Age

The Textorian is featured in the September issue of "Textile Age" magazine. A case history of the Cone Mills employee publication, the article is illustrated with eight photographs showing a few of the processes in the paper's production.

Stressing The Textorian's purpose of serving the Cone Mills employees, the story tells of the founding of the paper more than a quarter of a century ago by Marion W. Heiss, vice president of the company.

The article states, "The Textorian is one of the very few in the country today, employee-planned, employee written, employee-photographed, employee-printed and employee distributed, thus making the statement 'by and for employees' a reality.'"

You should inform the people of your produce, its facilities, its program and its staff." He urged the campaigners to plan their solicitations individually.

Which Comes First

With the increased activity in political circles, there is room left to question which comes first, party or country. We are afraid that in some circles that question is as difficult to answer as the one concerning the egg and the chicken.

Certainly we should not be naive to the point of believing either party is going to concentrate its attention and activity entirely on the welfare of the nation. Partisan politics and personal ambitions are too deeply engrained to expect a one hundred per cent objective attitude by orthodox party people.

We are not wanting too much, however, to expect men of statesmanship calibre in both parties to refrain from too much political maneuvering purely for party purposes.

We have been glad to note that Adlai Stevenson, whom we consider of statesmanship calibre, speaks objectively at least part of the time. We have regretted to note that he has to some extent, however, accepted the Truman conception of "giving them h___."

Governor Stevenson, despite the fact that he was extremely critical of the new administration in its early stages of building its policies, has also been talking objectively and intends to confer with his and our president.

Few people, of course, expect Truman to change his methods and his type of thinking. No miracle can be expected in that direction.

From the Republican side we also have politicians who are inclined to let party overshadow country. Such people frequently render their country an extreme disservice and indirectly reflect against their party.

In analysing the overall situation, we cannot lose sight of the fact that in the Democratic Party we have conservative statesmen and liberal statesmen; we have reactionaries and extreme radicals. In the Republican Party we will find the same type of extremes. In a way the situation is extremely funny.

Of course, we understand that no group of men under any affiliation label will see eye to eye on all problems, either domestic or international. The wide differences which now exist in both parties are much greater than you would expect in groups of men with the same party affiliation. It is our opinion that in both parties there are prominent men who would like to see this country become socialistic, and maybe there are some who would not object to seeing it go even further to the left.

It would appear that statesmen and others imbued with the spirit of preserving our Americanism would ride beyond the party confines and really try to cooperate for the welfare of the nation. In other words, we need a little bit more of the practical placing of country above party and we feel that the United States will inevitably suffer unless that is the case.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

...by George S. Benson
President of Harding College

With the United States not at war, and with no acute emergency existing, the taxpayers of America have good reason to resist any effort by the federal government to raise the limit on the enormous national debt. The people should demand a balanced budget for the 1954-55 fiscal years, the beginning of a program for gradual reduction of the national debt, and a substantial reduction in taxes.

Here are six good reasons:

1. The present administration took office with an electoral mandate from the people of America to drastically cut government spending, balance the budget and reduce taxes. It publicly acknowledged and accepted this mandate.

2. When Congress convenes in January, the administration will have had a year to establish sound financial practices and adjust the expenditures of the entire governmental organization to a reasonable rate of income from the taxpayers.

3. The recent history of government in the United States shows that if the citizenry permits it, the government will go beyond the money available and spend borrowed funds. It's easy, and it's good politics—if the people will permit a constantly rising debt. The government has overspent its income in 30 of the last 45 years, and 23 of the last 25.

4. A towering national debt which can be increased every time a political addministration wants to spend more money is an invitation to the worst kind of political extravagance.

5. A debt reduction is urgently needed. Every family's income in involved.

6. The yearly interest on the national debt now totals nearly $7,000,000,000. This is $130 a year for every family in the nation—taxes for which there is no governmental service being rendered.

The choice is simple: Shall taxes be increased or shall government spending be trimmed to balance the budget? In a very real sense, spending more borrowed money is slapping a heavier mortage on every American's income. If the government spends more the taxpayers must pay more—with interest. Talk to your Congressman, because Congress will be asked to increase the legal debt limit in January.

Eno Plant News

by Edna S. Ellis

The Hillsboro High School Wildcats opened the football season in fine style on September 11 when they exploded for touchdowns in the second and third periods to walk off with a 13-2 verdict.

Haw River jumped out front in the first period when David and Buddy Ray crashed through the Wildcat line and pulled down Gene McCauley behind his own goal as he attempted to skirt the end.

However, it was McCauley who came through with a sparkling 80-yard dash in the second quarter to put the hometown lads in front to stay. Another touchdown was scored in the third quarter as halfback Bruce Richmond climaxed a 40-yard drive by cracking the middle of the line from the Haw River 25.

Haw River was plagued with early-season fumbles and penalties as it kept neck and neck with its opponents in first downs. Both teams managed only five.

Mrs. Herbert Watkins, Mrs. Paul Dickerson and Mrs. Hazel Horner were joint hostesses at a surprise bridal shower for Mrs. Erma Barneycastle on Friday night. Mrs. Barneycastle is soon to become the bride of Mr. Charlie Hines. Many lovely gifts were presented to the bride-elect and the fifteen guests enjoyed games and refreshments.

A November wedding is planned for Miss Mary Garland Brumley, daughter of Mrs. John Garland Brumley of Gastonia and the late Mr. Brumley, and Lt. Robert Watkins Parlier, son of Mrs. Helen W. Parlier of Hillsboro.

Airman 2-c Edward Adams of Walker Field Air Base, and Private Jimmie Adams of Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, have returned to their respective bases after visiting their parents for a few days.

Pythian Echoes
by R. Cole Lee

On the shores of procrastination we have bleached many a bone of opportunity. Procrastination is the step-son of old man "Put-things-off," the old man who lives down near the end of the cross street known as "By and By," in that little village of "Never." Procrastination is a very pleasant fellow, a likeable chap, so likeable that many good and otherwise dependable men will entertain this great thief, entertain this rascal and be powerless in his clutch. The most precious possession anyone can have is—TIME. The great asset one can have, while associating with other people is—TIME. Now if someone were to tell you that you are in the power or under the influence of procrastination, you would in all probability get insulted. But listen, friend, be honest with yourself. Is procrastination your companion? The very essence of every great motive is destroyed by DELAY. On Sunday at certain hours, on week-days, as you so well know, your Church, your Lodge or your Organization meets, and while you have good intentions of attending, are you the victim that listens to the shiftless suggestions and plans for dangerous delays. You cannot point to a single successful Church, Fraternal Order or business that is dilatory. Individual interest, intense interest, is absolutely necessary in any work or gathering. Without this brand of intense interest, we are as useless to ourselves, our church, our lodge or society in general as perfumery to a litter of mud-plastered pigs. Why not show an increased interest and give of your time to those vital connections in which you hold membership?

If you should be approached very soon for a gift for the Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc., then count it a great privilege to share a portion of that with which you have been so wonderfully blessed. Here is a Society that affectionately reaches forth both arms toward little, innocent babies to provide love, care and guidance. Every dollar you share is an investment in the present and future welfare of some unfortunate babe and will most certainly be used "to put their feet in paths that lead to homes." You may turn over your gift to Miss Lelah Nell Masters, Textorian office, who, as city-wide membership chairman, is devoting much to this worthy cause.

Pythian W. B. Burke is traveling in the states of New Hampshire and Rhode Island on this, his most needed and well earned vacation. Boys, you can watch out for the "line" he will spread when he gets back.

Grover C. Morgan, having presented his application for membership, will start his initiatory work October 5 when Pythian Millard Leonard will be in complete charge of the ceremonies.

Pythian Jesse Wheeler is still in the Veterans' Hospital at Durham. From all reports he is doing nicely, so much so we hope that he will soon be back among us.

Announcement was made at the Castle Hall that the Community Chest Drive will start September 14 and conclude October 7. Additional information will be forthcoming soon about this drive, at which time everyone will have an opportunity to participate.

The next Dokkie Ceremonial has been tentatively set for November 14 or 21, depending upon the most suitable place it can be held at North Wilkesboro. Added features will be put into operation on that date to increase the pleasure and convenience of everyone attending.

The Children's Home Society receives no tax funds and is not a part of the Community Chest. Its entire existence for the past 50 years has been dependent upon the donations of public spirited citizens.

APOLOGIA

The Textorian last week made a gross error in reporting the weight of the huge salmon caught by Marion W Heiss in Canada in June. The fish weighs 35¼ pounds instead of 32 pounds, as stated by this paper.

Three and one fourth pounds of fish flesh is nothing to be sneezed at. Ye olde manager of The Textorian has yet to catch one weighing a pound. In fact when we do, we shall mount it.

Our apologies for "short changing" Mr. Heiss three and one quarter pounds!

Health For All

Addison's Disease

In 1885 in Guy's Hospital in London, Thomas Addison first identified the tragic disease of the adrenal glands still called by his name. Since he published his first paper on the disease, the diagnosis and findings have changed little, but life expectancy of is victims has been considerably lengthened.

Tuberculosis, atrophy, and tumor are the principal causes of the disease. The outer layers of the adrenal glands are involved and the situation is a grave one. The most obvious symptom of the disease is the gradual darkening of the skin. The color may vary from light brown to almost black, and in some cases there are warts colored dark brown or black.

Fortunately, Addison's Disease is comparatively rare. Only about 300 cases are reported in the United States yearly. It occurs more frequently in men than in women. The onset of the disease is undramatic, and by the time the darkening of the skin is noticeable, the disease may be in an advanced stage.

Far more serious, but less obvious, symptoms are a progressive loss of strength, general body fatigue and languor, low blood-pressure, and low blood-sugar content. Because the hormones from the adrenal gland are not being produced in sufficient amounts for the body to react properly to physical and emotional stress, patients must avoid work and emotional upsets which sap their strength and energies.

Synthetic hormones to replace the secretions normally manufactured by the adrenal gland, taken periodically, much the same as insulin is taken by diabetics, have changed dramatically the course of Addison's Disease.

Today, with sensible living habits and strict adherence to diet and doctor's orders, the person with Addison's Disease may look forward to years of reasonably comfortable living.
